cash," the first defendant told prosecutors.

"We sold them for a total amount of BD100," he added. The defendants were nabbed after a Pakistani man, who purchased four of the batteries, informed police about them. "I asked them to give me their identity cards, but they refused. So I suspected they were thieves," the Pakistani said in his statement.

in his Sitra cold store.

He was apprehended when an undercover agent, on a police tip-off, went to his store and bought from him alcohol posing as a customer. Several types of alcoholic drinks were seized from his store.

He justified his illicit act by stating to prosecutors that he wanted to increase his profits.

The defendant was charged with selling alcohol without permission, possessing liquors without a licence.

Alumni Club flays Iranian interference

Manama

The Alumni Club yesterday strongly condemned blatant Iranian interference which preys on Bahrain's stability and security and the unity of its people. In a statement, the Alumni Club affirmed Bahrain's long-standing Arab identity, saying that the Kingdom will thwart any plots and subversive designs.

They reiterated unwavering allegiance to His Majesty King Hamad, Prime Minister HRH Prince Khalifa bin Salman Al Khalifa and HRH Prince Salman bin Hamad Al-Khalifa, Crown Prince, Deputy Supreme Commander and First Deputy Premier. The club took pride in the outstanding national gains.

Woman drags dealer to court for car's defect

A Bahraini woman is suing a local auto dealership in the Court of Urgent Matters as her vehicle has a manufacturing defect. The proceedings of the case have commenced yesterday, and the plaintiff's lawyer Mohsin Al Shuwaikh said before the court that his client enjoyed driving the car for only one month before an engine error erupted.

He claimed that his client decided to file a complaint against the dealership after the latter failed to rectify the damage or take a proper action to fix it.

"My client paid full amount for the car, but after a month felt a shake in the car, and a message on the screen appeared suggesting that there was a defect in the engine," Al Shuwaikh said.

"She took the car to the dealership, and they told her that there was a problem in the engine. She kept the car for two days and they received a call informing her that the car was ready. When she asked them about what was the problem, they failed to respond to her questions," he added.

The lawyer requested the court to summon up a mechanical technician to conduct a thorough check on the car to ascertain its condition and the type of defect in the engine as well as its causes.
